

West Cork Chamber Music Festival 2022

Programme as of 27 April 2022

Friday 24 June

There are many themes threading their way through this year's Festival, two of them find their way into our opening concerts. The string quartets of Joseph Haydn are a firm fixture in every chamber music festival. The first work we hear is one of his mature works written for the London concert halls. The Festival has always supported Young Musicians at the many stages of their development as Musicians of the Future, players like Mairéad Hickey and Nathalia Milstein and the many other Young Musicians taking part this year.

1. House Opening Concert – Bantry House 19.00

Tuesday 28 June

Day Five brings another day of difficult choices amidst a wealth of great music beginning with French wind music. Weinberg's War Quartets remind us that he was a Polish Jew who barely escaped the Holocaust. Two big Schubert works follow; the late C major Quintet and the first of the great song cycles, Schöne Müllerin. Competing with Schubert are the first of two Brett Dean commissions, Elgar's Piano Quintet and Part Two of Biber's Mystery Sonatas.

Saturday 2 July

Day Nine begins with the story of Perseus and Andromeda. Malcolm Proud completes his performance of the Well-Tempered Klavier. Shostakovich's Viola Sonata is famous as his dark-hued but luminous final work, preceded here by two hidden gems discovered by our intrepid performers. Another rarity for voice and lower strings precedes Weinberg Thirteen, the first quartet he wrote after Shostakovich, his mentor, colleague and great friend passed away. The American composer, David Lang, has created a successor to Biber's Mystery Sonatas with his own 21st century version for solo violin.

Sunday 3 July

Day Ten brings our Festival to a close with a celebration of young talent. The day opens with the tragic tale of Dido and Aeneas, a story of love and betrayal that has inspired great music and great singing. The five Young Musician quartets each play one work in their showcase concert. Mairéad Hickey leads the final Bantry House concert before Danel Quartet bring the Weinberg cycle to a close.
